

International Taekwon-Do Federation (Scotland)

SPECTATOR CODE OF CONDUCT (2017)

ITF Scotland National Team Members are expected to follow our codes of conduct and regulations as well as our core values. These core values are: Teamwork, Respect, Enjoyment, Discipline and Sportsmanship. All parents and supporters are asked to uphold these core values too.

Our Team Members are expected to:

- Respect our national coaches & management team, and accept their decisions
- Respect the opposing competitor and their supporters
- Respect the rules of International Taekwon-Do Federation, both in and outside of the Dojang, and or competition arena
- Be gracious in victory and dignified in defeat

Our National Team Members compete because they enjoy it, and wish to be champions. We want you to enjoy the competition as much as they do and to show our team members and their opponents the respect and support they deserve.

Please do not spoil their event by:

- Disrespecting either competitor
- Shouting at the coaches and or referee
- Making inappropriate comments about their performance
- Impeding competitors from participating in the events they have been selected for
- Impeding coaching staff from carrying out their duties

Please do support and encourage all competitors by:

- Supporting positively
- Applauding good effort
- Respecting the referee and the opposition competitor(s), coaches and spectators
- Being a good role model
- Congratulating the team members in their wins

Your positive support and encouragement of ITF Scotland's National Team are greatly appreciated.

I accept and agree to abide by the above codes of conduct:
